John Gray, the supposed "lone highwayman," who held up the San Angelo stages, will be taken to the western district for trial, as Judge McCormick decides that the crime was committed on territory without the jurisdiction of the northern district. The robbery which led to Gray's arrest was committed near the "Willow Waterhole," which is near the line of Runnels and Tom Green counties, and the testimony located the stage at the time of the robbery within Tom Green county.

Major George H. Gassaway, of Falls county, is in town. The major is one of the most prominent citizens of his county and an extensive land holder. The proposed extension of the San Antonio and Aransas Pass railway traverses his land several miles and he has generously donated the right-of-way. More of the majors kind would cause a speedy resurrection of that oft forgotten project.

Waco butchers are preparing for an elaborate Christmas display of fine meats at their respective places of business. Wacoites are beef-eaters, if we are to judge by the number of markets in all portions of the city.

Nearly of the republican applicants for the postmastership have previous records as public office holders, and in some instances these records may prove strong recommendations to the applicants.

The murder sensation on Hogg creek has dwindled into nothingness. A necessary witness in the case in Milam county was spirited away until the defendants could secure a postponement of their trials, and that is about all of it.
